1. Get Our Stuff on Downloadpunk.com!
2. New Divide By Zero Record Out March 8th
3. Calm Before the Storm
4. Tour Dates

Ok, we're going to keep this one short and sweet. It's finally snowing in Philly so things are starting to finally feel like winter around here (with the sub-freezing temperatures and all). Hopefully we'll have heat in our new office soon cuz this shit is starting to make my feet feel like they're permanently frozen forever.

1. Get Our Stuff on Downloadpunk.com!

You can now download all your favorite Jump Start bands and records over at Downloadpunk.com! That's right, we've gone digital, baby. You can get tracks from our bands for $.89 a track or $7.99 for complete full-length records. EP prices vary from release to release based on the number of track in the EP, but check out our label page over at <http://www.downloadpunk.com/?webaction=website.Labeldetail&labelid=293>.

2. New Divide By Zero Record Out March 8th.

The new Divide By Zero record, "Answer to No One" hits stores March 8, 2005, but you'll be able to pre-order the CD directly from us starting February 1st. All pre-orders will receive a free sticker and patch, as well as discounted DBZ t-shirts for only $7 with the purchase of your CD. R-O-C-K! The boys will be doing a week of dates with Spitafield and The Faultlines starting January 28th. Check out <http://www.dividebyzeromusic.com> for more info.

3. Calm Before the Storm

Just in case you're wondering what's up with a lot of our bands, don't worry, most are taking well needed rests. A Wilhelm Scream just got done a run of dates with Rise Against and is currently at home in New Bedford, MA, working on material for their upcoming release this summer on Nitro Records. We'll have some brand new AWS merch available online at <http://www.jumpstartrecords.com> very shortly. Some of it is already done, but we're waiting for the whole shabang to be done before we post it. Belvedere is also at home taking a much needed rest, but sure enough will be hitting the road again this spring with the 1-2-3 Punk Tour with Rise Against all over Ontario and Quebec. Word on the street is Fonzie is touring Japan with Useless ID and Punchline, but we don't have a confirmation on that quite yet, so keep yer traps shut, cool? The Stockyard Stoics are enjoying some quality time back in the US after their month long tour in Europe. We should see some more Stoics dates throughout the US and Europe again shortly. Giving Chase is still looking for a second guitar player; Jesus might return to his people before that happens too. Jason has left Westgate, so the band is taking some time to finish school (Jeff and Hoban) before hitting the pavement again. We'll have to see if they'll ever leave this new warehouse in Fishtown. Rumor has it that the sun never shines here anyway. No word from Ritter as to when we might see some new material, but they're keeping busy playing in and around the Delaware Valley. Since everyone asks me what bands I've been listening to lately, here's a short list of what I think is hot right now....Metroplex, Live Fast Die, No Trigger, Quit Your Dayjob, Converge, Divide By Zero, and I've been listening to way to much Coheed and Cambria for a straight male in my (gasp!) thirties. Oh yeah, and I'm pretty sure the new Comeback Kid record is going to be the best record released in 2005, that and the new AWS CD. Victory should stick to signing bands like this instead of some of the shit they've been passing off as music lately. Oh yeah, I'm looking forward to the new Paint It Black and Everytime I Die records too. They're going to be the shit.
